For thousands of years,
bathing has been a cultural rite that is about much more than cleaning.

The classic bath is the traditional wooden tub, the formal presence of which is echoed and transported into today in this exceptional creation by Philippe Starck.

It represents the aesthetic reduction of design to the essential. Starck created Editions 1 and 2, award-winning product design that combines tradition and the spirit of the time in an impressive symbiosis, for HOESCH.

Positioned anywhere in the room, the award-winning Oval is perfect for enjoyable bathing and soothing relaxation.

The delightful version on two wooden beams is charmingly reminiscent of the wooden original.

Starck Edition 1 is also available with a towel rail.

The designs Starck 1 and 2 are available as freestanding versions with a tingly air jet system or fitted version with a powerful massage system.

Minimalism and elegance are key features in the design of British architect Norman Foster, whose creations include the dome on the Berlin Reichstag.

To Foster, individuality and space are more than formal terms – they are core values that determine the personal experience.

Thus his bathroom furniture consists of items for regeneration and wellbeing that create essential living spaces.

The effect of the freestanding bathtub lies in its simplicity and elegance.

The luxurious interior and generous base length invite the bather to submit entirely to a relaxed bathing experience.

The asymmetrically shaped edge not only aids entrance, but its wide surface also provides plenty of space for the fittings.

Whether freestanding or fitted, there are absolutely no limits at all to the whirling pleasure.
